

Restaurant Management

People's yearning for good life stems from a healthy diet. The demand for quality and variety in food is growing rapidly. Restaurants have adopted specialty offerings, for delivering service differentiation. In order to meet and retain growing clientele, restaurants have opened up chains (multiple units) either as franchise-led or self-owned outlets. With increasing complexity and scale of operations, a mere cash register cannot handle wide-spread restaurant functions and transactions. There is a need for an integrated information system to capitalize on market demand and ensure high quality services to privileged clientele.
